Mrs. Jefferson Davis has sent to Mrs. George Ross, for presentation to the Con-federate Memorial Literary Society at its next regular meeting, all the telegrams and letters of condolence received by her at the time of the death of her daughter Miss Winnie Davis. The package was ac companied by a letter from Mrs. Hayes (for Mrs. Davis), and an excellent photograph of the "Daughter of the Confederacy" for the museum. In the letter Mrs. Hayes stated that it is her mother's ultimate intention to tenuer to the latter all the badges presented to Miss Winnie y the various Confederate organizations It is needless to say that the gifts will be treasured by the Confederate Memorial Literary Society as among its most sacred possessions. Wednesday next is the day for the regular monthly meeting, but coming as it does at the Christ-mas season, it is not yet known whether it will be held on that day.

The Junior Cotillon will meet to-morow night at the Jefferson Hotel. Many Chaperoned by Mrs. Welch, the Towey" Club met at the Jefferson Hotel on the evening of the 23d, and was a stock of new music, and the whole affair will go off with Christmas jollity.

The "Midsummer Night's Dream," to be presented the last of January by the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, is destined to be a brilliant success, socially as well as financially. This play is managed and chaperoned by the most prominent society women in Richmond, and Miss Brooks, the talent-ed English actress, is staging it. It includes many beautiful songs and dances, and all the music will be Mendelssohn's.

"I am commander of one of the Confederate camps of Augusta, and I had eighty-odd of the old boys turn out to meet him. I reported to General Young, who commanded the Seventh Corps, stationed at Augusta, that my command was ready to parade, and awaited his orders. He assigned us to a position opposite the stand occupied by the President and Mrs. McKinley. I tell you, our old gray uniforms, with Confederate capteens, blanket rolls, and muzzle-loaders, attracted lots of attention. Not long after the visitors arrived an aide came up to me with a request from Mrs. McKinley that we come closer to the stand. She wanted to see us. I moved the boys up to within ten paces. "I met the President after the parade. He alluded to the fact that he had had fellows like us in front of him some time befora. But we were not in as good humor then, Mr. President, I replied. As the train was pulling out of the station Secretary Alger called from the rear platform, Good by, boys, we may need you again." THE POPE IN GOOD HEALTH. He Replies to Christmas Congratulations of Cardinals.

ROME, December 24.-The Pope yesterday, at the reception of the Christmas greetings of the Cardinals and other prelates, appeared to be in excellent health. Replying to their congratulations, he referred to the "sinister events of 1898," and said it was high time the governments of Europe united to stop "unheard of outrages and savage exterminations."

THE CHURCH IN ITALY.

In regard to the present position of the Church in Italy, the Pope pointed out that the symptoms were not reassuring for the new year. He added that the conditions imposed upon the head of the Church, in violation of his dignity and rights, "were apparently regarded as not hard enough, for now it was sought to cast odium upon the press which openly espoused the defence of his interests, and the interests of religion and morality."

Continuing, the Pontiff remarked:

"Further rigors threaten the clergy, al-though they are the class furthest removed from seditious designs.
